MRS. WILEY ENGLISH CALLED TO HER REST

Pioneer Mother Passes Away After Months of Suffering—Has Lived in Ukiah and Redwood Valley Since 1860.

Mrs. Hala Neece English, wife of Wiley English, died in this city Tuesday and the funeral was held from the home on Walnut avenue, yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. A large procession of relatives and sorrowing friends followed the remains to their last resting place.

The deceased was one of those pioneer women who braved the hardships of frontier life and made possible the remarkable development of the present day. She was a kind and loving mother and a devoted wife and her loss will be genuinely regretted by the community.

Hala Neece was born in Cedar county, Missouri, June 22, 1836, and came to California in September, 1860, and has since resided in Ukiah and Rewood valleys. On September 11, 1861 she was married to Wiley English who survives her. She was the mother of eight children: Mrs. Nannie Toney, George W. and Robert M. of Imperial county; Mrs. Frankie Warren of Oakland; William M. and Haney English and Mrs. Phronia Thomas of Ukiah. Mrs. Della Fairbanks, another daughter, died in 1906.

The sisters of the deceased are: Mrs. Sophronia Tryon, Mrs. Catheryn Cox and Mrs. Becky Higgins of Ukiah; Mrs. Mary Glover of Gardenia and two brothers, A. M. Neece of Long Beach and George Neece of San Francisco.

The deceased was a devoted Christian and a member of the Baptist church since girlhood. For the past 13 months she had been suffering from nervous prostration and death came as a relief from her sufferings.

Attorney Pettis has enjoyed a good practice since opening offices on the coast and has already secured a large number of clients. He is energetic and painstaking and has enjoyed a large measure of success with the business that has been entrusted to him. Mr. Elder is wellknown in Ukiah and throughout the county and his connection is especially valuable on account of his intimate knowledge of the business of the clients of the firm.

This new firm will start under very favorable auspices and their friends predict a large measure of success to them.

SAW IT IN THE PRESS

Charles Latzke was up from Los Angeles last week looking over the valley with the intention of purchasing. He has been farming in the southern portion of the state and has decided that he would rather live in a better climate and have a piece of good land. He was attracted to Mendocino county through reading one of the Press booster editions and stated that he found conditions here even better than represented in the edition.

RAIN INTERFERES WITH STREET WORK

Thos. S. Hutton who has been superintending the street work for the firm of Church & Clark reports that it is probable that nothing more can be done on the contract this winter. While the ground was dried out enough for a few days this week the frequent rains make it impossible to roll the ground sufficiently to get a firm foundation. The big roller and electric hoist will be returned to San Francisco for the winter. The street will be put in the best condition possible and will be opened for travel except when it is so wet that travel would ruin the grade. As soon as possible in the spring the street will be completed.

UKIAH FIREMEN TO GIVE ANNUAL DANCE

The Ukiah Fire Department will hold its annual masquerade ball on New Year eve. This is the 35th annual ball of the firemen and means that they have been giving a ball every year for 35 years. It is always held on New Year eve and by long-continued custom New Year eve has come to be recognized as the night of all the year belonging expressly to the fire laddies.

The committee having this year's ball in charge are working industriously. They promise an evening of fun and frolic second to none that has ever been given here. In addition to the usual program of dances there will be a big confetti carnival in the hall at midnight to signalize the birth of little 1914. The decorations will be a big feature and will be specialized on greenery, ferns and Christmas berries will be used lavishly and there will be special lighting effects.

The usual prizes will be given for the best sustained and most original characters, lady and gentleman, and for the best group of three or more. These prizes will be on display in a few days. The best of music will be secured. Tickets will be out in a day or so and it is up to every property owner in Ukiah to buy one and help the firemen out. They get nothing for their services and the only way they have of raising money for their club room and the expenses of their organization is their yearly ball. Buy a ticket whether you can attend or not and thus help them out.

AL MALPAS AT PALACE

Fred Anderson who has been clerk at the Palace for several years has resigned his position and gone to San Francisco where he has several offers in the larger hotels. He expects to get on either at the Palace or the Fairmont. Al Malpas, who for several years was interested in the Cecile will be found behind the counter at the Palace and is renewing acquaintances with the traveling public. Al was one of the best liked men in the hotel business at Ukiah and the traveling public will welcome his return. Host Sandelin is to be congratulated on having secured his services.

Frank Gibney, formerly employed at the Palace, has returned from Richmond and is again on the job. Tom Flynn has resigned his position and has accepted a position in a San Francisco hotel.

A PROGRESSIVE FARMER

Frank B. Cook was over from Philo this week on a business visit and also to visit his brother, George. Frank is one of the progressive farmers of the county and reports that times have been good in Anderson valley and that the farmers have all had a prosperous year. Mr. Cook takes an interest in exploiting the resources of Mendocino county and at the Fort Bragg county fair won first prize on his Hoover apples and on his black oats. He also captured first prize on his black oats at the Mendocino apple show this year and last and the oats are now on exhibition at the ferry building in San Francisco. Incidentally Frank is a reader of the Press and reports that he is pleased at the boosting the Press is doing for Mendocino county.

HOP MARKET QUIET AND SALES ARE FEW

Seventeen cents is being offered for one year contracts on 1914 hops but so far none of the growers have contracted. Tom Howard sold 47 bales Saturday of the 1913 crop for 19 cents to Hugh Cox for Wolfe Netter & Co. A half cent better had been offered during the week on some lots on an order but the growers refused. All the hops remaining of this years crop in Mendocino county are: Frank Lawrence 52 bales; Arnold Ford 206; Fred Waugh 29; Joe Cunningham 55; T. E. Garner 179. Of the Lake county hops: Ed Dorr 52 bales, E. C. Riggs 56, Al Riggs 130.

It is said that the dealers and the trade all well supplied and that there is no activity in the market and dealers are only buying on orders. The new hops will not be used until they have aged which will be about March.

Moore preaching the funeral sermon. A large concourse of mourners followed the remains of one of Mendocino county's most highly respected women to their last resting place.

Mrs. Standley was born in Keithsville, Mo., Aug. 29, 1851, and crossed the plains with her parents and located in Manchester in 1859. She was married to the late J. M. Standley in September, 1868. The children surviving her are: Mrs. J. A. Jamison, Jr., Mrs. E. B. Gibson, Mrs. L. M. Hildreth and Lieut. Hal Standley.

Four sisters and four brothers also survive her: Mrs. Isaac Crispin, Mrs. Joseph Bishop, Mrs. Henry Bowen, Mrs. William Lynch, W. B. Clay, Harris Clay, Charles Clay and Dr. Louis Clay.

Mrs. Standley was highly regarded by her many friends and had won a place in the hearts of those who knew her by her tender manner and kindly ways. The floral tributes were profuse and beautiful and a silent testimonial of the regard in which she was held.

A RUNAWAY HORSE ON STATE STREET

Peter Martinazzi's horse scared at the steam roller Saturday afternoon and threw him out of the cart on to the sidewalk. The horse then took up State street, narrowly avoiding a number of collisions, and when in front of Jamison Bros. locked wheels with Supervisor Ford's buggy. The impact turned the cart over and the horse turned the corner at Kent's store and was caught by George Finney in front of Stitt's lumber yard.

Supervisor Ford's little son was in the buggy and was knocked out when the cart struck it, but he climbed right back in and got hold of the lines. Mr. Martinazzi was not hurt. The horse is the one that scared at the steam roller on the state highway last summer and threw his sister out and killed her.

MISS EDITH JOHNSON IS CHARMING BRIDE

Ceremony Performed at the Residence of the Bride's Parents Sunday and they Leave for San Jose to make their Future Home, Amid Showers of Rice and Best Wishes.

Sunday morning at 11:30 Miss Edith Johnson, daughter of County Treasurer and Mrs. Geo. A. Johnson, and Lester J. Bertsch were united in marriage at the residence of the brides parents. Rev. Fox performed the ceremony and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bertsch stood up with the happy couple. Only immediate relatives and friends of the contracting couple were present. After the ceremony and congratulations all set down to a sumptous wedding dinner. The newly weds left on the afternoon train for San Jose where they will make their home.

The bride is a handsome and talented young lady and is wellknown both in Ukiah and Fort Bragg where she formerly resided. The groom is wellknown here also and is the brother of Frank Bertsch and formerly resided here. He now has a good position in San Jose where he had already prepared a home for his bride. The wedding presents were numerous and beautiful. The residence had been tastefully decorated in ferns and flowers.

The bridal party was taken to the train in an auto and their friends saw to it that they were liberally supplied with rice and old shoes and other tokens of wedded life. The Press joins their many friends in wishing them a long and happy wedded life.

SURPRISED AT THE EDITOR'S IGNORANCE

In reporting Mrs. Jannette Tanner's present to the White House bride last week it was erroneously stated that she gave iron holders. In fact it was fancy teapot holders, one of fancy design and the other representing an ear of corn. Although in her 79th year Mrs. Tanner is still fond of her fancy work and spends her spare time making the artistic things that so delight a womans heart. She was surprised that the editor should not know the difference between a tea pot holder and an iron holder and that he should even think a presidents daughter should need ironholders. In truth he should have known better but then presidents daughters are so scarce in this section that he has not had a chance to observe their personal habits. The bride was delighted with her presents as the following letter to donor bears witness:

"White House, Nov. 24, 1913—My Dear Mrs. Tanner—I have received with great pleasure the charming memento which you have sent for my wedding. I appreciate very much your kindness in thinking of me and want to express my thanks. Believe me very sincerely, Jessie W. Wilson."

UNCLE TOM'S CABIN AT THE REX THEATRE

Thomas Gibson of the Rex Theatre announces Uncle Tom's Cabin in three reels as a feature for Saturday afternoon and evening. This drama is a masterpiece of the films and it will pay you to see it if you have seen it played a dozen times before. The Matrimonial Agency of Roaring Gulch is another feature for Saturday.

Mr. Gibson reports that he has just installed another machine and now there is no delays between reels, one of the machines always being ready to entertain the audience. His motor generator arrived this week and is being installed. This will generate the current for the pictures and give a direct current which will give a brighter and stronger light and a better picture.

Mr. Gibson is also contemplating moving the petition and lowering the floor and devoting the entire lower floor to the theatre. He expects to commence remodeling the building in the near future.

SCHOOL MONEY IS APPORTIONED

JOHN OWENS CALLED TO HIS FINAL REST

John A. Owens died at his rooms in the old Redemeyer building Wednesday afternoon. The funeral was held this morning under the auspices of the Fraternal Order of Eagles the services being conducted at the M. E. Church south. The remains will be shipped to San Francisco this afternoon for cremation. The deceased had been working that morning for Charley Kent and had gone home for lunch. He had laid down on the lounge and his brother was getting him something to eat and when he returned to the room found John unconscious. Dr. Liftchild was summoned but Mr. Owens had passed away before he could get there.

The deceased was born in Rockridge county, Va., June 16, 1861, and had been a resident of this city for a number of years. He was a member of the local Aerie of Eagles. He leaves a sister, Mrs. Louise V. Oncken, and brother Ed of this city and a brother, C. A. of Santa Rosa.

LAYING HEAVY RAILS

The new 75 pound steel rails on the local road are laid as far as Petaluma and it is expected that the new rails will be put down between San Rafael and Tiburon in a few weeks. This improvement is in expectation of the heavy traffic that will pass over the road when it is completed to Eureka.

STRONG FOR WANT ADS

J. W. Waide is a strong advocate of Press want ads. When he disposed of his ranch he had a lot of farming implements on hand also other ranch necessities. He advertised them in the Press and reports a large number of inquiries. He has also sold out about everything that he wants to get rid of. The last sale was his mule colt to Joe Cox and Tom Farrance. Tom had read of it in the Press and bought it without looking for it as he said that he was satisfied that anything advertised in the Press must be good.

CHINESE MISSION WORKER WAS HERE

At the Christian church last Sunday morning, Miss Edwards, of the San Francisco Mission, was greeted by a large congregation, whose interest was enlisted from the first, and held until the last; and many regretted that she did not speak longer. Her pupils who accompanied her, a Chinese boy of fifteen, favored us with two solos which were beautifully rendered: The first was sung in Chinese, and the second in English. The service was in charge of the ladies of the Christian Womens Board of Missions, and the church was artistically decorated in their colors, lavender and white.

The offering which reached near $50.00 will mostly be applied to the building of a Sunday school room in the Chinese Mission building, in San Francisco, which is to be completed in 1915, in time for the exposition.

We are well aware that there is much prejudice against the Chinaman as a Chinaman, but why not help to make him different, so that we can look upon him as a Chinaman revolutionized into a clean, law-abiding American? Then we will be helping to fulfill the command of Christ, "Go ye therefore and teach all nations."

THE HUSBANDS OF EDITH

By GEORGE BARR M'CUTCHEON

Copyright by Dodd, Mead & Co.

SYNOPSIS

Roxbury Medcroft persuades his friend Brock to publicly impersonate him in Vienna as the husband of Medcroft's wife, Edith, while Medcroft remains in London.

Brock meets Edith and, lacking separate accommodations, has to sit up alone all night in the sleeping car.

He makes many amusing mistakes and meets Constance, his alleged sister-in-law, who insists that he call her "Connie."

Brock becomes interested in Constance, cultivates an English accent and has trouble answering to the name Medcroft.

The party meet the Rodneys and Freddie Ulstervelt, who almost discovers that Brock is an impostor.

Freddie annoys Brock by courting Constance, with whom Brock has fallen desperately in love.

Brock meets the Odell-Carneys, London society people. Freddie tells Brock he is in love with Constance and wants to jilt Katherine Rodney.

The Odell-Carneys have unwarranted suspicions of Mrs. Medcroft, and Katherine discovers that Brock is in love with his alleged sister-in-law.

Odell-Carney discovers that the real Medcroft is in London exposing grafters and that Brock is an impostor.

The tongue of scandal continues to busy itself with the names of Mrs. Medcroft, Brock and Constance.

Brock and Constance love each other. Brock is arrested, and Mrs. Medcroft is in serious trouble at her hotel.

Constance bribes a jail guard to release her lover, but Brock has already been released on bail.

The real Roxbury Medcroft appears in Vienna, everything is explained and the wedding day of Brock and Constance is set.

CHAPTER XV.

What? Another Husband.

IT was a perfectly natural, but not an especially obvious question. The little manager threw up his hands and cried out in a sad mixture of French, English and Helvetian:

"What? Another husband? Madam, how many more do you propose to inflict us with? We cannot allow it! The management will not permit you to change husbands the instant a new guest arrives in the house. It is not to be heard of—no, no!"

"Are you afraid that the books won't balance?" asked Brock, with a joyous grin, a great load off his heart. "Ladies and gentlemen, permit me to introduce Mr. Roxbury Medcroft, my friend and fellow conspirator. He is the husband of this lady, not I. I am to be the husband of this lady, thank God!"

There was a moment of absolute silence—it may have been stupor. The two audiences faced each other with emotions widely at variance. It was Mrs. Rodney who spoke first.

"Is this true, Edith?" she quavered.

"Yes, yes, yes!" cried Edith, her eyes dancing.

"Then, what are you doing here with a man who isn't your husband?" demanded Mrs. Rodney, suddenly aflame.

"I can explain everything to you later on, Mrs. Rodney," interposed Mrs. Odell-Carney calmly. She had divined at least a portion of the truth, and she was clever enough to put herself on the right side. Edith cast an involuntary look of surprise at the Englishwoman. "I have known everything from the first. Mrs. Medcroft and I are closer friends than you may have thought." She gave Edith a meaning look and a moment later was whispering to her in a private corner of the private office: "My dear, I don't know what it means, but you must tell me everything as soon as possible. I am your friend. Whatever it all is, it's ripping!"

Medcroft finally waved every one aside in the most degage manner imaginable.

"Don't crowd me! Hang it all, I'm not a curiosity. There isn't anything to go crazy about. My friend, Mr. Brock, has just done me a trifling favor. That's all. The whole story will be in the London papers this morning. Buy 'em. I'm going up to my wife's room to see my baby. I'll come down and explain everything when I've had a bit of a breathing spell. It's annoying to have had this fuss about a simple little matter of generosity on the part of my friend, who, I've no doubt, has been a most exemplary husband. I'll see to it, by Gad, that he receives the proper apologies. And, for that matter, my wife may have something to say about the outrage that has been perpetrated."

"When did you arrive, old man?"

"Last night on the 12:10. I registered as Smith. It was so late that I decided not to disturb Edith. They said in the office that you'd gone to bed, Brock. Now that I recall it, they said it in a very odd way too. In fact, one of the clerks asked if I had it in for you too."

"You were here all night?" murmured Constance in plaintive misery.

"Well, not precisely all night, Connie. Half of it," replied Roxbury. "Brock, you ass, I telegraphed you I was coming and asked you to meet me at the station. I telegraphed twice from London and"—

"Don't call me an ass," grated Brock. "Why didn't you send 'em to me as Medcroft? I haven't been Brock until this very morning."

"'Pon my soul, Brock, it was rather stupid of me," he confessed sheepishly. "But, you see," with an inspired smile, "one of 'em was to congratulate you on winning Connie. By Jove, you know, I couldn't very well address that one to myself."

"But—but he hadn't won me," stammered Constance Fowler.

"Edith," said Roxbury, deep reproach in his voice, "you wrote me that a week ago." Edith merely squeezed his arm.

Odell-Carney came forward and extended his hand. "Permit me to introduce myself, sir. I am George Odell-Carney. It has given me great pleasure to serve you without knowing you. In my catalogue of personalities you have posed intermittently as a demmed bounder, a deceived husband, a betrayed lover, a successful lover and a lot of other things I can't just now recall. Acting on the presumption that you might have been a friend in distress, I worked hard in your interest. Now I discover, to my gratification, you are a perfect stranger, whom I am proud to meet. Permit me to offer my warmest felicitations and to assure you that Mr. Brock will make a splendid brother-in-law." He hesitated a moment and then went on: "So you are the chap that really put in those c'nfended memorial windows. 'Pon me word, sir, they are the rottenest"—

"Carney!" came the sharp reminder from his wife.

"I should have said," revised Mr. Odell-Carney, "you are the chap who played the deuce with the building grasp something of the situation as it appeared to the other. "We beat them. The bill is lost. It will never go to the council. The subcommittee will not recommend it. Thanks, Brock, old man. You have saved London a good many millions, I daresay. It was you who did it after all."

Before noon the hotel was agog with the full details of the remarkable story. Cabled dispatches in the newspapers gave the gist of the clever trick played by the Medcrofts, and the whole of England was to ring with the stories of Mrs. Medcroft's pluck and devotion.

The management of the Tirol implored the Medcrofts to remain—forever! The bank and the police were profuse in apologies and explanations, and Mr. Githens departed by the first train.

Freddie Ulstervelt, killing two birds with one stone, arranged a splendid dinner for that night in honor of the prodigal husband of Edith and also in open compliment to the vivacious Mlle. Le Brun.

Later in the day it occurred to him that he might just as well kill three birds as two, so he planned to announce the betrothal of Miss Fowler and Mr. Brock, the wedding to take place a fortnight hence in Mayfair. The Rodneys were invited to "stop over" for the spread. It is left for the reader to supply the answer to this simple question:

Did they stop over?

THE END.
